KNOW ENOUGH

Bookkeeper, lawyer or ops hire?

What your business needs now, and next.

Mila Milićević · NexaStrategic

Operations isn’t just process.

It’s eight panels. Process is one.

You don’t need to be the operator. You need to know enough to know when.

The house isn’t on fire.

You understand what’s happening, and the company can exist.

If you stepped away, what breaks?

And where would you still need a person’s judgement?

Bookkeeper

Accountant

Part-time finance director

CFO

Most early businesses need the first two, done well.

Not

“Can you look at our contracts?”

But

“What are the steps, in order, and what’s the worst case?”

1 · The problem, in one line

2 · The decision I need

3 · What’s out of scope

4 · A fee cap, and by when

Know enough to know when.

Save this for the next time someone tells you that you need a CFO.